

PRESS RELEASE

Contacts:

Debra Cambridge
NTSI, Army Project Manager
602-692-1716

Paul Hallums
NTSI, President and CEO
520-403-9915

The National Traffic Safety Institute (NTSI), a Tucson, Arizona based national corporation, is pleased to forward the attached press release from the United States Army.

NTSI greatly appreciates the honor of being selected to produce a classroom and a web based defensive driving program for all United States Army personnel. NTSI spent the last nine-months working closely with Army command in the development of programming designed to reduce preventable motor vehicle crashes, injuries, and deaths of Army personnel.

The NTSI engaged the services of several Arizona based corporations to provided valuable collaborative support and development services. NTSI found Arizona to be rich in knowledge, talent, and resources.

NTSI appreciates the opportunity to assist the Army at this important time in our history. We also appreciate the opportunity to serve and share our honor with Arizona professionals and its business community.

NTSI Army Subcontractors:

- E-Studio for Learning
Tucson, Arizona
Internet curriculum development and program design
- Agilant Learning Systems
Phoenix, Arizona
HTML/Web design

The above corporation collaborated closely with NTSI translating our unique brand of instructional design into an innovative and contemporary format while insuring that the program meets Army and NTSI specifications and performance standards.

- Bohac Consulting
Tucson, Arizona

Application development and WEB design as well as consulting for various IT issues and application development for the Learning Management System designed to provide administrative tracking and support

- High Octane Creative
Long Beach, California

Provided creative direction

- Film Creations
Tucson, Arizona
- Russell Public Relations
Tucson, Arizona

Film production